Few Words –

Congratulations everyone, we all have survived the starting two weeks of this semester and that means we can survive the whole semester as well. During these days either the things will start getting easier or difficult but whichever way it goes, I want you all know that we all are here for your help. If you need any support or help with anything, please reach out to me or to anyone in ASI. We will try our best to help you but if we can't then we will find someone who can.
